Dear ****,

I write in connection with your request for information dated 12th August 2021 concerning Tool thefts.

I am required by the Freedom of Information Act 2000 to handle all requests in a manner that is blind as to the identity and motives of the requestor. Any information released as a response to a request is regarded as being published and therefore in the public domain without caveat.

Your request for information has now been considered and I am not obliged to supply the information you have requested.

You wrote:

1. The number of tool theft and construction machine theft incidents from construction sites which have been reported, along with the value of the tools/machines and the quantity of the tools/machines that have been stolen. This should also be broken down into the type of tool (hand-powered tool, diggers or other vehicles etc), and should be provided for the last three years up to the date of your reply to this email.
2. The number of incidences of construction material theft which have been reported to you, which should include the exact materials which were reported stolen (eg steel, cement, plastics etc). This should be provided for the last three years up to the date of your reply to this email.

Our response:

The information that you are requesting is not stored in a way which permits easy retrieval. We currently do not have the capability within our systems to specifically record a number of categories of information which might otherwise enable easy searches for information.

We do not classify the location from which a theft has occurred – all Thefts from a particular location are recorded under the same specific crime recording category, we do not record whether the theft has been from a construction site etc.

In addition, we do not record tool thefts from particular locations in a separate manner from the thefts of other items such as personal belongings (handbags, cash, clothing etc), car parts (eg wing mirrors, number plates etc).

Also, we do not currently have the capability within our system(s) to record the specific property that has been stolen (or its estimated or known value). Our system does not list the property in a manner which enables easy search. The details of the property stolen in a theft can be found in the body of the crime log, in victim's or officer statements or within the free text of the call log report.

The only way of ascertaining the information you require would be to physically read every crime occurrence during the time period you have requested that relates to all Thefts to try and locate the information you are requesting.

Under the circumstances I am absolutely confident that to locate, retrieve and extract the information you seek would by far exceed the time obligations upon this authority to comply, and in so doing would exceed the fees limits. This is set at £450 calculated at a flat rate of £25 per hour for those work activities comprising of confirming the information is held, locating it, retrieving it and extracting it.

Ordinarily under our section 16 duty to provide advice and assistance, we would advise you how to refine your request to a more manageable level. However, due to the difficulties outlined above, I cannot see how this can be achieved in this particular case.

Section 17 of the Freedom of Information Act 2000 requires the Wiltshire Police, when refusing to provide such information (because the information is exempt) to provide you the applicant with a notice which: (a) states that fact, (b) specifies the exemption in question and (c) states (if that would not otherwise be apparent) why the exemption applies.

The exemption applicable to the information requested is:

Section 12: Exemption where cost of compliance exceeds appropriate limit

- (1) Section 1(1) does not oblige a public authority to comply with a request for information if the authority estimates that the cost of complying with the request would exceed the appropriate limit.

In accordance with section 17 of the Act, this letter represents a Refusal Notice for this particular request.

I am satisfied that all the relevant information has been passed to me and been considered in the light of your request within the time constraints applicable under the legislation.

Wiltshire Police would like to thank you for the interest that you have shown in the Force.

Yours sincerely,

Kerry Merritt
