Dear,

I write in connection with your request for information dated 22nd November 2021 concerning heritage crime.

I am required by the Freedom of Information Act 2000 to handle all requests in a manner that is blind as to the identity and motives of the requestor. Any information released as a response to a request is regarded as being published and therefore in the public domain without caveat.

Your request for information has now been considered and I am not obliged to supply the information you have requested.

You wrote:

- 1) What are the levels of recorded heritage crime in your county over the last 5 years?
- 2) What categories of heritage crime have been recorded in your county over the last 5 years?
- 3) What are the current police practices for responding to heritage crime within your service?
- 4) Does your service partake in partnership working in relation to heritage crime working, for exemplifying working with finds liaison officer (FLO's)? – if so how
- 5) Are situational crime prevention techniques used by your service to prevent heritage crimes?

Our response:

The information that you are requesting for the majority of your request is not stored in a way which permits easy retrieval.

Heritage crime is not an offence we can easily search on and although incidences of heritage crime would likely fall under the offence of criminal damage, dependent on the incident reported it could well fall under different offence categories and therefore, the only way in which we would be able to ascertain the information requested accurately would be to manually peruse through each report made over the last 5 years. As a result, this would take us well over the allocated time frame we have to complete your request within and is therefore, exempt from disclosure.

Under the circumstances I am absolutely confident that to locate, retrieve and extract the information you seek would by far exceed the time obligations upon this authority to comply, and in so doing would exceed the fees limits. This is set at £450 calculated at a flat rate of £25 per hour for those work activities comprising of confirming the information is held, locating it, retrieving it and extracting it.

Ordinarily under our section 16 duty to provide advice and assistance, we would advise you how to refine your request to a more manageable level. In order to do so, I would advise that you request for specific Home Office code(s) for us to search on in order for us to locate heritage crime related reports as well as shorten the length of time that you would like this information for. This is because despite refining your request considerably by requesting for Home Office code(s), please do bear in mind that this will still involve us having to physically look through each report, however, it should hopefully be on a much reduced scale if the length of time is shortened.

Section 17 of the Freedom of Information Act 2000 requires the Wiltshire Police, when refusing to provide such information (because the information is exempt) to provide you the applicant with a notice which: (a) states that fact, (b) specifies the exemption in question and (c) states (if that would not otherwise be apparent) why the exemption applies.

The exemption applicable to the information requested is:

Section 12: Exemption where cost of compliance exceeds appropriate limit

- (1) Section 1(1) does not oblige a public authority to comply with a request for information if the authority estimates that the cost of complying with the request would exceed the appropriate limit.

In accordance with section 17 of the Act, this letter represents a Refusal Notice for this particular request.

I am satisfied that all the relevant information has been passed to me and been considered in the light of your request within the time constraints applicable under the legislation.

Wiltshire Police would like to thank you for the interest that you have shown in the Force.

Yours sincerely,

Kay Moore
