Dear XXXXXX,

I write in connection with your request for information dated 11th February 2022 concerning 999 Calls.

I am required by the Freedom of Information Act 2000 to handle all requests in a manner that is blind as to the identity and motives of the requestor. Any information released as a response to a request is regarded as being published and therefore in the public domain without caveat.

Your request for information has now been considered and I am not obliged to supply the information you have requested in full.

You wrote:

Your a) average, b) longest and c) target response times for 999 calls categorised as each of the following:

1. Grade/tier 1 'emergency' calls (or equivalent)
2. Grade/tier 2 'priority' calls (or equivalent)
3. All 999 calls

Please provide annual data for each of the last seven calendar years: 2015, 2016, 2017, 2018, 2019, 2020 and 2021.

Our response:

The information that you are requesting in respect of the longest response time for 999 calls (by category) is not held in a format which is easily retrievable.

There are a number of 999 calls where the arrival time was not recorded formally on our system(s) at the appropriate time – due to either operational issues or handler error. This means there is data quality issues in respect of the data we hold in respect of the longest response time by category.

In some cases, the 999 response time is showing at 10 hours or more which is clearly incorrect. In order to identify the exact longest response time by category, it would be necessary to look through each call log and try and identify the true arrival time of officers in each instance.

Given the number of these anomalous records for the 7 year period you are requesting, I am absolutely confident that to locate, retrieve and extract the information you seek would by far exceed the time obligations upon this authority to comply, and in so doing would exceed the fees limits. This is set at £450 calculated at a flat rate of £25 per hour for those work activities comprising of confirming the information is held, locating it, retrieving it and extracting it.

Although excess cost removes the forces' obligations under the Freedom of Information Act, as a gesture of goodwill I have supplied information, relative to your request, retrieved or available before it was realised that the fees limit would be exceeded. I trust this is helpful, but it does not affect our legal right to rely on the fees regulations for the remainder of your request.

What I am able to provide you are the answers documented in the attached excel spreadsheet, which shows the following :-

- The total number of 999 calls received by priority 1-3 and overall, by year
- The average response time for 999 calls by priority 1-3 and overall, by year
- The target response time by priority 1-3, by year

Ordinarily under our section 16 duty to provide advice and assistance, we would advise you how to refine your request in respect of the longest response time to a more manageable level. However, due to the difficulties outlined above, I cannot see how this can be achieved in this particular case.

Section 17 of the Freedom of Information Act 2000 requires the Wiltshire Police, when refusing to provide such information (because the information is exempt) to provide you the applicant with a notice which: (a) states that fact, (b) specifies the exemption in question and (c) states (if that would not otherwise be apparent) why the exemption applies.

The exemption applicable to the information requested is:

Section 12: Exemption where cost of compliance exceeds appropriate limit

- (1) Section 1(1) does not oblige a public authority to comply with a request for information if the authority estimates that the cost of complying with the request would exceed the appropriate limit.

In accordance with section 17 of the Act, this letter represents a Refusal Notice for this particular request.

I am satisfied that all the relevant information has been passed to me and been considered in the light of your request within the time constraints applicable under the legislation.

Wiltshire Police would like to thank you for the interest that you have shown in the Force.

Yours sincerely,

Nick Penny
