Ref: FOI 2023/469

Dear,

I write in connection with your request for information dated 20th April 2023 concerning complaints made against officers for inappropriate behaviour towards women.

I am required by the Freedom of Information Act 2000 to handle all requests in a manner that is blind as to the identity and motives of the requestor. Any information released as a response to a request is regarded as being published and therefore in the public domain without caveat.

Your request for information has now been considered and I am not obliged to supply the information you have requested.

You wrote:

I would like to request how many complaints have been made by members of the public against police officers for inappropriate behaviour towards women between January 2021 and March 2023. I am defining inappropriate behaviour as:

- Wolf whistling
- Asking for people's numbers or social media account
- Touching
- Staring
- Taking inappropriate photos
- Flashing

Could I please have the data broken down using the following criteria:

- The year that the incident occurred
- The details of the complaint - e.g. a police officer wolf whistled at a member of the public
- The outcome of the complaint
- Whether the incident happened at a public event - e.g. a protest or a football game

Despite you kindly refining the time frame provided in your previous request (previous reference: FOI 2023/358) – the information that you are requesting for the majority of your request is still not stored in a way which permits easy retrieval. As mentioned to you previously, Wiltshire Police currently do not have the capability within our systems to easily and accurately identify the root cause of a complaint made without manually trawling through each complaint made within the given time period. This is because when a complaint is made, it is saved under a heading such as “Discreditable Conduct” or “Other Sexual Conduct” for instance, and then the detail about the nature of the complaint is entered into a log. As a result, as stated previously, the only way in which we would be able to ascertain the information you require accurately would be to physically look through each complaint made within the timeframe requested to see if it relates to what you are after.

Therefore, under the circumstances I am absolutely confident that to locate, retrieve and extract the information you seek would by far exceed the time obligations upon this authority to comply, and in so doing would exceed the fees limits. This is set at £450 calculated at a flat rate of £25 per hour for those work activities comprising of confirming the information is held, locating it, retrieving it and extracting it.

Please note, that if one part of the request engages a Section 12 response, the whole request will engage a Section 12 response. The reason being is due to the fact that locating, retrieving and extracting any further information would only add to the already exceeded time obligations.

Ordinarily under our Section 16 duty to provide advice and assistance, we would advise you how to refine your request to a more manageable level. However, due to the difficulties outlined above, I cannot see how this can be achieved in this particular case.

Section 17 of the Freedom of Information Act 2000 requires the Wiltshire Police, when refusing to provide such information (because the information is exempt) to provide you the applicant with a notice which: (a) states that fact, (b) specifies the exemption in question and (c) states (if that would not otherwise be apparent) why the exemption applies.

The exemption applicable to the information requested is:

Section 12: Exemption where cost of compliance exceeds appropriate limit

- (1) Section 1(1) does not oblige a public authority to comply with a request for information if the authority estimates that the cost of complying with the request would exceed the appropriate limit.

In accordance with Section 17 of the Act, this letter represents a Refusal Notice for this particular request.

I am satisfied that all the relevant information has been passed to me and been considered in the light of your request within the time constraints applicable under the legislation.

Wiltshire Police would like to thank you for the interest that you have shown in the Force.

Yours sincerely,

Force Disclosure Decision Maker
