Dear,

I write in connection with your request for information dated 8th June 2023 concerning the number of occasions Wiltshire Police has instructed a solicitor to act on behalf of a victim of domestic violence in the Family Court process.

I am required by the Freedom of Information Act 2000 to handle all requests in a manner that is blind as to the identity and motives of the requestor. Any information released as a response to a request is regarded as being published and therefore in the public domain without caveat.

Your request for information has now been considered and after having consulted our Legal Services team – I am now able to respond as follows.

You wrote:

I was asking for the number of occasions wiltshire police has instructed a solicitor to act on behalf of the victim of domestic violence in the family court process.

it is the number of times wiltshire police had provided this service that i require.

there is a format in which the police offer this service and i just require a figure to put into relative terms about the usage of the procedure.

Our response:

To the best of our knowledge, on zero occasion has the force (via Legal Services) instructed a solicitor to act on behalf of a victim of domestic violence in the Family Court process.

I am satisfied that all the relevant information has been passed to me and been considered in the light of your request within the time constraints applicable under the legislation.

Wiltshire Police would like to thank you for the interest that you have shown in the Force.

Yours sincerely,
