Dear XXXXX,

I write in connection with your request for information dated 8th August regarding leadership team emails.

I am required by the Freedom of Information Act 2000 to handle all requests in a manner that is blind as to the identity and motives of the requestor. Any information released as a response to a request is regarded as being published and therefore in the public domain without caveat.

Your request for information has now been considered and I am able to respond as follows.

You wrote:

Please can you provide a copy of the response from the ICT department and the e-discovery output that you mentioned on 25 June 2025 in response to my Freedom of Information request entitled "Use of the word "bitch" by Wiltshire Police Leadership Team".

In your response you said: "a copy of this request was sent to our ICT department who ran searches through e-discovery and provided a response on 16th June confirming no information is held."

Our response:

Please see the response from our Head of ICT:

"Search carried out with zero returns, full export of query ran and results (zero hits for keywords) no syntax errors from the query and all files searched for any conversation, email or file with the requested keywords with the requested individuals tagged as participants."

We are unable to provide the full export results; however, a Whole Force search was carried out and there are 10,000 identical lines of data as below:
