Dear XXX,

I write in connection with your request for information dated 19th August regarding police officers under investigation.

I am required by the Freedom of Information Act 2000 to handle all requests in a manner that is blind as to the identity and motives of the requestor. Any information released as a response to a request is regarded as being published and therefore in the public domain without caveat.

Following receipt of your request, research was conducted by the Professional Standards department at Wiltshire Police.

Your request for information has now been considered and I am able to respond as follows.

You wrote:

Please can you provide the following information:

- The number of police officers currently under investigation for sexual assault
 - The number of these officers broken down by working status: working as normal, on restricted duties, suspended, or have left the force
- The number of police officers currently under investigation for domestic violence
 - The number of these officers broken down by working status: working as normal, on restricted duties, suspended, or have left the force

Our response:

- 1 – suspended
- 0 (zero)

I am satisfied that all the relevant information has been passed to me and considered in the light of your request within the time constraints applicable under the legislation.

Wiltshire Police would like to thank you for the interest that you have shown in the Force.

Keeping Wiltshire Safe

Yours sincerely
