Dear ,

I write in connection with your request for information dated 18/12/2025 concerning Working Time Regulations 1998.

I am required by the Freedom of Information Act 2000 to handle all requests in a manner that is blind as to the identity and motives of the requestor. Any information released as a response to a request is regarded as being published and therefore in the public domain without caveat.

Your request for information has now been considered, and I am not obliged to supply the information you have requested.

You wrote:

Under the Freedom of Information Act 2000, please could you provide the following information for the most recent 12-month period for which data is available.

Primary request:

1.The number of occasions on which police officers were recorded as exceeding the 48-hour average weekly working time limit set out in the Working Time Regulations 1998.

2.For the same period, the number of occasions where any management action, guidance, or intervention was recorded in response to such exceedances (for example enforced rest days, rescheduling of duties, or other steps taken to ensure compliance).
Secondary information (where readily available):

3.Where recorded and readily retrievable, the number of occasions during the same period where police officers were recorded as breaching minimum daily or weekly rest requirements under the Working Time Regulations.

4.Where recorded and readily retrievable, the number of occasions where management action, guidance, or other intervention was taken in response to such rest-period breaches.

5.A brief description of how compliance with the Working Time Regulations is recorded and monitored within the force, including the system(s) or process(es) used (for example duty management systems, HR systems, or other oversight arrangements).

Response:

Section 1 of the Freedom of Information Act 2000 (FOIA) places two duties on public authorities. Unless exemptions apply, the first duty at s1(1)(a) is to confirm or deny whether the information specified in a request is held. The second duty at s1(1)(b) is to disclose information that has been confirmed as being held.

Whilst I can confirm Wiltshire Police do hold the requested information, section 12(1) of the FOIA states:-

Section 1(1) does not oblige a public authority to comply with a request for information if the authority estimates that the cost of complying with the request would exceed the appropriate limit.

The type of information you require is not stored in a way which allows for easy retrieval. Unfortunately, our system does not hold that level of granular detail, therefore we would have to look at every record of which there are approximately 700 records that fall within the scope of this request. A manual search would take approximately 4 minutes to review each record with the total time for this would be over 40 hours, which would be significantly greater than 18-hours work.

Under the circumstances I am absolutely confident that to locate, retrieve and extract the information you seek would by far exceed the time obligations upon this authority to comply, and in so doing would exceed the fees limits. This is set at £450 calculated at a flat rate of £25 per hour for those work activities comprising of confirming the information is held, locating it, retrieving it and extracting it. Therefore the whole of the request falls under the exemption of section 12 of the Freedom of Information Act 2000.

Please note:

If one part of the request engages a Section 12 response, the whole request will engage a Section 12 response. The reason being is due to the fact that locating, retrieving and extracting any further information would only add to the already exceeded time obligations.

Forces may use different recording systems; therefore it may be possible some Forces can provide this information where others cannot.

Ordinarily under our Section 16 obligation to provide advice and assistance we would advise you of a way to refine your request to a more manageable level. Please see above where the suggestion of contacting trading standards has been made. In respect of other questions within your request, I cannot think of a way in which you would be able to refine these questions, as they may incite further exemptions dependent on what information we may or may not hold.

Section 17 of the Freedom of Information Act 2000 requires Wiltshire Police, when refusing to provide information (because the information is exempt) to provide you the applicant with a notice which: (a) states that fact, (b) specifies the exemption in question and (c) states (if that would not otherwise be apparent) why the exemption applies. In accordance with the Freedom of Information Act 2000 this letter acts as a Refusal Notice for those aspects of your request.

Exemptions applied:

Section 12: Exemption where cost of compliance exceeds appropriate limit

Yours sincerely

Force Disclosure Decision Maker
