Dear XXXXXX,

I write in connection with your request for information dated 3rd June 2026 concerning Sikh Kirpan Knives / Swords.

I am required by the Freedom of Information Act 2000 to handle all requests in a manner that is blind as to the identity and motives of the requestor. Any information released as a response to a request is regarded as being published and therefore in the public domain without caveat.

Your request for information has now been considered and I am not obliged to supply the information you have requested.

You wrote:

Please detail the number of reported offences between Jan 23 and Dec 25 where a ceremonial Sikh Kirpan knife/sword was mentioned in the crime report.

If possible break the data down into the month it occurred and whether the offence related to possession of the weapon; threat of assault; or some form of assault using the knife.

Our response:

The information that you are requesting is not stored in a way which permits easy retrieval.

Whilst our crime recording system(s) are fairly sophisticated and contain a number of designated fields in which certain specifics related to a crime are recorded – in this case whether a weapon has been used or not – we do not have a dedicated field in which we record the specific type of weapon, only the generic category of weapon used.

For the 3 year time period you have requested, Wiltshire Police have recorded 124,279 specific individual crimes.

Of these, 5,560 had a weapons flag attached to them, of which 2,337 were related to the use of bladed items of one kind or another.

If the specific type of bladed item was even recorded, that information would only be held in one of the following :-

- The narrative of the occurrence log of the crime
- The narrative (possibly) of the call made to police
- Within associated documents saved in our systems such as statements / records of interview / seizure documents etc

In order to locate the information you require, it would necessitate us to access each of these 2,337 crime reports in turn (plus their associated documents) and review them in order to A determine whether or not they met your criteria and B make a new record of the information.

Even allowing a very conservative 5 minutes per crime record to undertake this task, it would take c195 man-hours to achieve. Under the circumstances I am absolutely confident that to locate, retrieve and extract the information you seek would by far exceed the time obligations upon this authority to comply, and in so doing would exceed the fees limits. This is set at £450 calculated at a flat rate of £25 per hour for those work activities comprising of confirming the information is held, locating it, retrieving it and extracting it.

It should also be noted that there is no obligation on an authority to create information where none currently exists today, simply to answer an FOI request.

Ordinarily under our section 16 duty to provide advice and assistance, we would advise you how to refine your request to a more manageable level. However, due to the difficulties outlined above, I cannot see how this can be achieved in this particular case.

Section 17 of the Freedom of Information Act 2000 requires the Wiltshire Police, when refusing to provide such information (because the information is exempt) to provide you the applicant with a notice which: (a) states that fact, (b) specifies the exemption in question and (c) states (if that would not otherwise be apparent) why the exemption applies.

The exemption applicable to the information requested is:

Section 12: Exemption where cost of compliance exceeds appropriate limit

- (1) Section 1(1) does not oblige a public authority to comply with a request for information if the authority estimates that the cost of complying with the request would exceed the appropriate limit.

In accordance with section 17 of the Act, this letter represents a Refusal Notice for this particular request.

I am satisfied that all the relevant information has been passed to me and been considered in the light of your request within the time constraints applicable under the legislation.

Wiltshire Police would like to thank you for the interest that you have shown in the Force.

Yours sincerely,

Nick Penny
